

Our client is a second-generation, owner-managed, specialised livestock practice. The practice is based in the north-west of Germany. Its core competencies are pig breeding and fattening, calf rearing and fattening, and dairy farm management. Herd management, prophylaxis and therapy are closely interlinked and are offered at a high level thanks to the in-house laboratory, including a pathology lab. Training courses are held several times a year for both staff and clients to ensure a level of cooperation. The highly organised, large veterinary team provides a convenient emergency duty system.

As part of a succession plan, we are looking to fill a full-time, permanent position at the earliest possible date.

Veterinarian as farm animal practitioner (f/m/d)

Responsibilities:

- As part of a team of around 20 veterinarians, you will mainly be involved in herd management of fattening and rearing barns or dairy farms, depending on your personal focus.
- You will be part of a group of three to four colleagues organised by a group manager.
- Your self-determined daily routine will consist mainly of self-planned client visits using a mobile practice. Keeping animals healthy is the main goal.
- Advising on husbandry, breeding, feeding and vaccination strategies is part of your daily routines. Depending on your expertise, you will also carry out minor surgeries on cattle and manage fertility, udder and hoof health.
- You will carry out diagnostics mainly in the practice's in-house laboratory and in some cases, with external institutes.
- You will pay particular attention to the consistent and complete documentation of your activities and the administration of medicines.
- You'll have on-call duties (no night shifts) every fourth weekend
- Your geographical working area is within a manageable radius in the South West of Lower Saxony (Niedersachsen).
- Your direct supervisor is the group manager

Requirements:

- You are a veterinarian. Your focus and passion is for pigs and/or calves and cows.
- Ideally, you have gathered several years' experience in a farm animal practice.
- You are a good organiser and self-motivator.
- You combine veterinary counselling skills with physical resilience and diagnostic talent.
- Skilful communication and guidance of professional farming clients are also part of your strengths.

The offer:

You can expect a solid job in an established large animal practice with a good atmosphere and routine. Scheduled visits and services and disciplined clients allow a good balance between work, leisure and family life. With our own laboratory, you will be able to implement therapies quickly and effectively and provide high quality veterinary care. Building on what you have learned so far, this practice offers many opportunities for personal development. Your local group leader will support you as needed. Young professionals are also welcome and will be thoroughly trained and supported. The convenient location in a transition zone between several small towns and the open countryside is just as attractive for families as it is for individualists.

Dr Felix von Hardenberg and his team will be happy to make initial contact with you on +49 8178 9986410.

Please send your detailed application documents (CV, salary expectations and earliest possible starting date) by e-mail to:
application@hardenberg-consulting.com, quoting the reference number 2281911.

www.hardenberg-consulting.com

vetjobs24.com

Stellenangebot 2281911 / job offer 2281911

Large Animal practice
Livestock practice
Veterinarian
Swine Veterinarian